Lars Leijonborg becomes Senior Advisor at Diplomat Communications

Lars Leijonborg, previous cabinet minister and party leader, becomes Senior Advisor at Diplomat Communications – one of Sweden's fastest growing communications advisers.

“Diplomat Communications has grown rapidly since the beginning 2003. Our latest commitment is an office in Brussels. We always strive to strengthen our competence in giving advice to our clients. Lars Leijonborg will contribute with experience on politics in Sweden and in the EU”, says Anna-Karin Hedlund, CEO Diplomat Communications.

“In my previous missions I have seen that both the business world as well as organisations are in need of efficient communication towards decision-makers. I look forward to contribute with my knowledge, analysis and strategic advice for the benefit of Diplomat Communications' clients”, says Lars Leijonborg.

Mr. Lars Leijonborg has a long working life in politics. He was party leader for ten years, cabinet minister for three years and Member of Parliament for more than 30 years. This year Lars Leijonborg was appointed chairperson of the Swedish Educational Broadcasting Company. Lars Leijonborg takes up his duty as Senior Advisor 1 August 2010.
